DIRECTORS' NOTES:

Euripides' Helen doesn't fit neatly into the boxes of tragedy or comedy. Some say it's a play of many moods. Written around 460 BCE, it dives into the tangled relationship between gods and humans. It raises some big questions: How do we tell what's real and what's not? Who is really telling the truth? Is war unavoidable? Why can't we just talk things out? Do gods exist, and if they do, how do they treat us mortals?

Helen of Troy, often celebrated as the most beautiful woman in the world, is a key figure in Greek mythology. She was adored in Sparta, embodying beauty and desire. In some stories, she's abducted by Paris, while in others, she falls for him and leaves her husband, Menelaus, setting off the infamous Trojan War—a conflict that brought devastation for ten long years.

Euripides gives us an alternative version, suggesting that Helen never went to Troy. This version shines a light on her loyalty to Menelaus and her strength in resisting unwanted advances, flipping the script on the blame often placed on her. It invites us to think about identity, perception, and how easily a woman can be made a scapegoat.

I've loved Greek plays since my early days as a dancer and theater designer. I have directed several tragedies with my amazing friend and composer, JD Steele. Our whole team and I have taken great delight in bringing this play to life. I hope you enjoy this theatrical adventure and that the play invites you to reflect on our world in new and surprising ways.

— Marcela Lorca

PLAYWRIGHT / TRANSLATOR NOTES:

Greek tragedy has a problem. We can't recreate the circumstances, the look or the feel of this form of theatre as it was performed more than 2000 years ago. Even its name — 'tragedy' — leads us astray. Many of the plays have happy endings; they look more like our notion of traditional comedy — lovers in disguise, revelations of long-lost family members, daring escapes from a domineering villain, tricky servants.

And so it is with Helen.

How, then, should we feel about the twists and turns of plot, the undignified heroes, the even more undignified gods, the sassy come-backs from lowlife characters?

One way, I suggest, is to put yourself in the position of the first audience for this play in Athens at the end of the 5th century BCE.

For a generation their city has been embroiled in a fratricidal war between two coalitions of Greek states. Not long before Helen was produced, a leading Athenian General launched an invasion of the faraway island of Sicily. The goal — dominance and treasure; the outcome for his army — annihilation.

You could think of that whole doomed enterprise as a tragedy. You could also think of it as a bitter comedy, featuring overconfident leaders who consider themselves heroes, while the only level heads belong to those who have nothing to lose — captive citizens and disillusioned veterans.

I think Euripides makes it clear where he stands.

— Kenneth Cavander

Bradley Greenwald

(King Theoclymenus, Chorus) He/Him

"Theater does me. Every production feels like starting over: new playmates, new material, new outlook on life. So, truly, as long as theater continues to choose me, I'm game." Bradley has performed recently at Theater Latté Da, History Theater, Open Eye Theater, and on cabaret and concert stages. He is also a writer and director.

John Jamison II

(Soldier, Chorus) He/Him

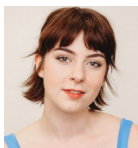

"Theater is, arguably, the most potent form of expression that we have. The creative alchemy of the human experience is unmatched in its capacity for universal truths. Theater loves me, and I love them." THEATER (Selected): Chanhassen Dinner Theatres: Beautiful: The Carole King Musical; A Night at the Theater – A Tribute to Queen. George Keller

(Helen, Chorus) She/Her

"I do theater because it is my profession. In many ways, it's therapeutic to study different personality types from the inside out. I like to play characters that are multi-dimensional and complicated. It's a way of seeing a story through the lens of someone else and a lot of preparation goes into each sentence to give the audience a full view of a complete person. And... it was the only thing I was drawn to when thinking about what I was gonna do with my life." George is so grateful to return to TTT. Her last show with TTT was The Spitfire Grill directed by Marcela Lorca. George Keller was born and raised in Minneapolis and has been a professional actor for over 30 years. She was last seen in Misery at Yellow Tree Theater as Annie Wilkes. Other theaters include: Penumbra Theatre, Guthrie Theater, Children's Theater Company, Mixed Blood Theater, The Jungle, Huge, Pillsbury Playhouse, Theatre Novi Most and Park Square Theater.

Liv Kemp

(Messenger, Chorus) She/They

"Theatre is radical empathy. It creates a safe space for curiosity, discomfort, and most of all, growth. I love theatre because it challenges us to selflessly reconsider what it means to be human." Liv is a Twin Cities-based theatre artist, educator, and web designer. This is her first TTT production and she could not be more excited to join this community! A recent grad of the UMN/Guthrie BFA program, Liv has acted locally with The History Theatre (I Am Betty), The Guthrie Theatre (Christmas Carol, Troilus and Cressida), Yellow Tree Theatre (Toil and Trouble), Theatre Latte Da and the Playwright's Center. She is a resident teaching artist at the Guthrie Theatre and the owner of Anecdote Designs- a web design business for artists and theatre companies.

Bill McCallum

(Menelaus, Musician) He/Him

"I believe theater is important and necessary work. The ritual of people gathering in real time and space to take notice, through story, of our common humanity, is central to the evolution of humans as a social species. The stories we tell shape the world we live in. I love being a part of that. It is my calling." Bill has been making theater in the twin cities for almost 3 decades. He has worked Penumbra Theater, Pillsbury House theater, Park Square Theater, Illusion Theater, Yellow Tree Theater, Dark & Stormy Productions (Associate Artistic Director) and more than 50 productions at the Guthrie Theater. He is thrilled to be finally making his TTT debut with Helen.

Dominic Schiro

(Teukros, Chorus) He/Him

"Storytelling is the thing that brings me the most joy, and being able to share that feeling is such a blessing and a gift." Dominic is a passionate theatermaker and is very excited to make be in their second TTT show. his most recent credits include The Dumb Waiter (Jackdonkey Prod.) The Spitfire Grill (TTT) and Stupid Fucking Bird at the UMN Guthrie Actor training program. Dominic would like to thank his family and friends for supporting him throughout the years.

Michael Wolfe

(Chorus) He/Him

"Why do I do theater? Because I love it. Theater allows me to reach within myself in order to access parts of my personality that I don't get to access in my normal life. I also like to use acting as a visual medium to tell stories that emotionally fulfill other people." In 2012 Michael joined the professional theater company at Interact Center for the Performing Arts and ever since then he has performed in a multitude of plays such as: Hell Is Empty and All the Devils Are Here...Again!, Joy, What Fools These Mortals Be, Plot-holes: A Fool's Foibles, and many more. In 2014 Michael performed with Mixed Precipitation in King Arthur, a Picnic Operetta. With over 12 years of experience in theater, Michael has become a very seasoned singer, actor, dancer, and all around performer. He is what people call a triple threat!

Kenneth Cavander

(Playwright, Translator) He/Him

Kenneth started his career in theatre as an Assistant to the Director at London's Royal Court Theatre and in television as adaptor of Euripides' Trojan Women for BBC TV. Since then, his plays, television scripts, adaptations and translations have been widely performed both in the U.S. and abroad. He has been represented on Broadway and at many regional theatres, among them the Guthrie Theatre, Minneapolis, Arena Stage in Washington, D.C., the Yale Repertory Theatre, the Williamstown

Theatre Festival. In the U.K., his work has been presented by the Royal Shakespeare Company (The Greeks, from which Helen has been excerpted) and in London's West End. His television writing for commercial networks and for PBS in the U.S., and in England for BBC-1, has garnered several awards and nominations. When adapting a 5th Century BCE drama he works from the original classical Greek text.

Marcela Lorca

(Director, Movement) She/Her

"We do theater to connect with and understand each other through stories that inspire, move, delight and make us wonder. Nowadays, I can't think of anything better than coming together, however we can, to explore and celebrate the diverse stories that ignite our imaginations." Marcela's directing credits for TTT include The Spitfire Grill, Twelfth Night, Emilia, Iphigenia at Aulis, The Comedy of Errors, Thunder Knocking on the Door, The Winter's Tale, Into the Woods and The Sins of Sor Juana. She has directed and choreographed work for the Minnesota Orchestra, TheaterWorks in CA, the Guthrie Theater, McCarter Theater, Children's Theater, Milwaukee Rep, Oregon Shakespeare Festival, Syracuse Stage, Mixed Blood, Goodman Theater, Shakespeare Theater in DC, Latte Da, Old Globe Theater, Juilliard Drama School and others. Previously, she was Director of Company Development and Movement Director for the Guthrie. Marcela is the recipient of the prestigious 2019 Zelda Fichandler Award.

JD Steele

(Composer, Music Director) He/Him

"Theater is a collaboration of artists that features our shared human experiences. It is often a reflection of our societies, histories, relevant current events and glimpses into the possibilities of our futures. It can reflect our circumstances through drama, comedy and various emotions in ways that can inspire, uplift and provoke thought through content and context." JD and his dynamic vocal siblings, The Steeles, have garnered every major music award and accolade the state has had to offer. He has been commissioned on ten original musicals and collaborated on six, including locally at the History Theatre, Mixed Blood Theater and The Southern Theater. JD has also taught and developed music workshop curricula across the country including students for Berkeley School of Music in Boston, and San Francisco. He has been honored with a 2003 Bush Artists Composer Fellowship and nominated for an Emmy.

Sonya Berlovitz

(Costumes) She/Her

"I love the poetry of theatre. With a sensitive blend of artistry and craftsmanship, we can enable an audience to expand their hearts and minds." I have chosen projects that speak to that process as a costume artist since 1980 when I began working with Theatre de la Jeune Lune where I collaborated on over sixty of their productions. Since 2009 I have been working with The Moving Company and will design costumes for a remount of Speechless, their beautiful and timely production without words opening on October 3. In 2023, I worked with my friend and producer Miki Nagai to create a show in Tokyo, Japan called Red (costume renderings, and artwork by Sonya Berlovitz). Helen is my fourteenth production with Ten Thousand Things. Some of my favorite productions have been Into the Woods, A Winter's Tale, The Hatmaker's Wife, and The Changelings. sonyaberlovitz.com

Jo Holcomb

(Dramaturg) She/Her

"In his play Shadowlands, William Nicholson has the character of C.S. Lewis say: 'We read to know we are not alone.' Although Lewis didn't say that, I believe it to be true and the idea is also true for me in terms of why I do theater. Theater, in its many forms – certainly in the form it takes with TTT – guarantees community. We share ideas, we agree and disagree and above all, we tell a story, finding our very root again in a tale shared and savored." Jo has served as a dramaturg for several TTT shows, more than 75 productions with the Guthrie, and productions for Six Points, Macalester College, The Playwrights Center and PlayMakers (UNC). She is a member of TTT's Artist Core, an artistic council and faculty member at the Eugene O'Neill National Theater Institute and on faculty at the University of Minnesota B.F.A. Actor Training Program.

Joel Sass

(Sets, Props) He/Him

"Why not? As a storyteller from childhood, it's the perfect vocation in which to exercise my interests in design, character and narrative. Plus, telling stories, from as many different traditions and points of view as possible, stimulates understanding and empathy – virtues that will always be necessary for a healthy society." Joel is a producer, stage director, designer and adapter, specializing in the creation of new multi-disciplinary work for the stage and devising imaginative reinterpretations of classic texts. He also serves as Open Eye Theatre's Producing Artistic Director, after having first joined the company as Associate Producer in 2017. He has been based in the Twin Cities since 1991, working at the Guthrie, the Jungle, Park Square Theatre, History Theatre, Pillsbury House, Theatre de la Jeune Lune, Oregon Shakespeare Festival, Arizona Theatre Company, and CalShakes. He is a McKnight Theatre Artist Fellow, and the recipient of the Alan Schneider Director Award from Theatre Communications Group (TCG).

Anna M. Schloerb

(Acting Production Manager) She/They

"I believe theater-making can be a catalyst — to question the ingrained 'truths' society has led us to believe. It is a gift to be a part of an art form that touches our humanness, that embodies truthful, authentic, experiences of life. In theater we are given space to play, to imagine, and to be curious, and it is in this that we find connection back to our humanness that leads a path for a new way forward."

Anna is a multifaceted theater artist. Most recently she was the Production Management Fellow at the Children's Theater Company for their 2023-24 season. Anna will be working with the Moving Company this fall on their production of Speechless and with CTC this winter on Milo Imagines the World. Anna is so honored and excited to be working with TTT for a part of their season!

Maya Vagle

(Stage Manager) She/Her

"Theater fosters crucial communities where people can celebrate and find joy. It is a profound blessing." Maya is thrilled to be working on Helen this Fall. She would like to thank the production crew, artistic staff, and cast for their work throughout this process. She hopes you enjoy the show!

Ryan Volna-Rich

(Production Manager) He/Him

"Theatre is more than just a story, it's an experience. You experience the sorrow, the laughter, the joy all together with your fellow audience members, you empathize as a group. I think our world could use more empathy, more group stories." Throughout his career, Ryan has made an effort to highlight and support the work of others. He is excited to bring this passion and his skills to work at Ten Thousand Things, helping to support the world-class story tellers as they captivate audiences.

Alex Galick

(Assistant Director) He/Him

"I do theater because it brings absolute strangers together in community to be moved, provoked, and delighted in our shared humanity. It is a joy and privilege to take part in that experience, and I'm excited to assist this production of Helen." Alex has directed Romeo and Juliet at Rochester Civic Theatre Company, and assistant directed Much Ado About Nothing at Stillwater Zephyr Theatre. Primarily as an actor his work on stage has included productions with Twin Cities based companies Dark & Stormy Productions, Guthrie Theatre, Yellow Tree Theater, Gray Mallard Theater Co., TigerLion Arts, Park Square Theater, and regional companies Door Shakespeare, Illinois Shakespeare Festival, and Utah Shakespeare Festival. He holds an M.F.A. from Louisiana State University, and a B.A. from Macalester College.
